Change of Seasons

It's That Time Again...

As summer bursts into full swing, take a moment to walk around your yard and make a list of Summer Maintenance items to be completed:

- Trim – long before hurricane winds arrive, elevate and thin trees to minimize storm damage.
- Hand trim shrubs and cut away branches badly effected by pests and disease. Be sure to seal cuttings in yard waste bags, then clean your tools to contain the infestation.
- Mulch – a fresh layer will protect plant roots, impede weed growth, and conserve moisture.
- Irrigation – install a rain sensor. Adjust heads for proper coverage and recent plant growth.
- Drainage – note areas where water is standing or damaging your yard.
- Seal pavers to preserve their color and make cleaning faster.

Let's Play

Create play spaces where kids can exercise and express themselves

Make-Overs

Low maintenance plantings save your valuable resources

Drainage

Make that rain go away! Let us know if you need some help with puddles.

Lastly, take a moment to evaluate the view of your property from the curb. What does this perspective express to the neighborhood or potential buyers? Is this the image you are going for, or is it time to make some changes?

Backyard Play Spaces

An Investment in Family Time

As a Mothers Day gift, Lisa Albright's family created this little Fairy Garden. Not sure which was more fun... the children's creative play or Lisa's smile every time she walked out the front door.

Engage with children of all ages in a natural play space for exercise and creativity in your own backyard.

- Incorporate elements to challenge both gross motor and fine motor skills.
- Consider everyone's individual passions.
- Build around favorite themes and activities
- Include a spot for art supplies and the messiest joys of childhood.
- Create game areas for all ages: tic-tac-toe, bocce ball, even a full volley ball court.
- Allow for a relaxing space to read, rest, or just day dream.

Zoysia Grass

The preferred sod for a great look with minimal maintenance, and superior pest & disease resistance!

Looking out into the yard, what do you see:

A beautiful place to relax after a long day?

Brown patches mixed with dollar weed?

Rather than curse the lawn guy, let's replace that mess with a low maintenance grass designed to water, mow, and forget it!

Dan Albright, landscape specialist and owner of Albright Landscaping, has repeatedly witnessed the benefits of Empire Zoysia in clients' landscapes.

These results eventually triggered his decision to install it throughout his own two-acre property. For homeowners whose back yards endure high traffic from pets, children and regular get-togethers, Zoysia's durability is particularly beneficial. "Even with our four dogs and ducks running around, we've never had any issues with wear and tear", he affirms. Mr. Albright found that the benefits of Zoysia didn't stop at fun in the sun, they extend right into the shade. "Typically grasses don't do well in the shade. Some may work, for a while, but they often need extra care. After installing Empire Zoysia in my yard's shade areas, I noticed that it performed wonderfully without needing extra maintenance". Zoysia grass' high performance comes with low maintenance, substantially reducing homeowners' dependence on chemical treatments, requiring fewer fertilizers, insecticides and fungicides than alternative grasses. In addition, Zoysia's drought tolerance gives homeowners year-round peace of mind while enhancing environmentally sound living.
